Jefferson County SPCA needs your help

WATERTOWN, N.Y. -- For years the SPCA in Jefferson County has been trying to improve its shelter and raise funding for a new building. The current shelter is over capacity with dogs and cats.

Now there's a way you can help and it doesn't cost you anything. All you have to go is go online and vote for the SPCA with just the click of a mouse.

Zoo-too, along with a grant program is awarding up to a million dollars to the organization that gets the most votes to improve their shelter.

"The area desperately needs it. We don't have animal control, Jefferson County SPCA are the only ones that take all animals, all domestic animals and we spay and neuter them in house, find them good homes, we screen the potential adopters and I think we have a great place here but are shelter is crumbling and we really need a new building," said Linda Miles, SPCA Director.
